One arrested, one sought in local stabbing attack

One man has been arrested and a second suspect is still being sought in the multiple stabbing of West Sacramento resident Clarence Lee Smith, 26, on Saturday morning.

Shortly before 7 a.m., police were notified that a wounded man was in the area of 6 St., and victim Smith was located near 6th St. and Sacramento Ave. shortly after 8 a.m. He had been stabbed in the back, leg and face, and required several hours of surgery at the UCD Medical Center, following which he was reported to be in stable condition.

An unconfirmed police report stated that the stabbing occurred at a California Street residence.

Although the victim was "unable to provide any detailed information," police arrested suspect Charles Smith (no relation to the victim), a 27-year old North Sacramento man, at about 10:30 a.m. on Saturday. A second suspect whose identity has not been released is also being sought.

Lt. Ed Hensley of the West Sacramento Police Dept. said information on possible motives for the attack are not yet available.

School board will meet to talk about Dr. Miller's contract

By Steve Marschke

While the parties involved are keeping mum about the subject, the newly seated school board will meet in special closed session on Thursday for an evaluation of the performance of the district's top manager, superintendent Dr. David Miller.

Miller's contract expires in a little over a year -- at the end of March, 1998. Beginning work with the district in 1994 after previous superintendent Dr. Del Alberti was ousted, Miller's contract was extended once shortly after he was hired, and has not been extended since. His tenure has seen a number of honors and improvements within Washington Unified School District, but has also brought occasional stormy relations between some staff and board members.

Miller said Tuesday he was not in a position to comment on his employment situation, and referred comment to board president Ardeene Westvik.

Westvik said Tuesday that she expected no surprises at Thursday's special session.

"We are not going to fire him, I can guarantee that," she commented. "Other than that, it's a meeting to discuss his contract."

The board has one new member since the November election: Hal Williams, who was president of the board and one of the members responsible for removing previous former superintendent Alberti.

Williams at times has been publicly critical of Miller, although Williams stated during his campaign that he would be able to work with Miller.

> 'We are not going to fire him, I can guarantee that.'
> Ardeene Westvik
> School Board
> President

Williams declined comment on Thursday's special meeting, referring comment to board president Westvik.

Within California school districts, it is uncommon for school boards to allow a superintendent's contract to fall below two years remaining -- or at least one year remaining -- if they intend to keep him or her on staff. On April 1, if Miller's contract is not extended, it will fall below the one-year mark.

MISSING

A 13-year old local girl is the subject of an intense regional search since she disappeared on Saturday afternoon.

Heidi Ubrick, who lives with six family members in a West Sacramento home, was last reported playing in the abandoned rice silos in the area of the riverfront area.

"She was there with a friend," said Lt. Ed Hensley of the West Sacramento Police Dept. "They got separated and she hasn't been seen since."

Hensley added that police have led a thorough search of the rice silo area, and are following leads as to the girl's possible whereabouts.

"We've got a lot of phone calls," he said, following regional news media attention to the case.

He said the girl is not described as a chronic runaway.

HEIDI UBRECK

Heidi is 4' 10" tall, 95 pounds, with blonde hair, hazel eyes and a red birthmark above her right eye. She was last seen at about 2:30 p.m. on Saturday wearing white sweat pants, a black long sleeve shirt with a crew collar and brown/camel hiking boots. She is known to frequent the Old Sacramento and K Street Mall areas.

Anyone with possible information is asked to call Detective Martha Barbosa or Lt. Dave Farmer at the West Sacramento Police Department, extensions 239 and 262, respectively.

Accepted the following donations to Evergreen School: Target Stores donated gift certificates totaling $75.00 to be used to recognize outstanding students and parent volunteers at their Winter Program; 1st Nationwide Bank donated $2,000.00 to purchase a circulation desk in the new library and a $300.00 check which will be used for their Food Closet.

Rishi Sharma, student board representative, gave an update on activities taking place at the various schools.

Approved the following recommended routine and consent items: MECCA Grant-Gender Equity; contract for Child Development Program's One-Time-Only Instructional Materials; River City High School Associated Student Body Funds, first quarter report 1996-97; reaffirm district's substantial enrollment status by maintaining a multi-track year-round program at Bryte and Golden State Middle School; summary of purchase orders exceeding $3,000.00; purchase order report, December 1996.

Approved regular school board minutes of Tuesday, December 10, 1996.

A public hearing was held for the purpose of inviting public input regarding the establishment of priorities for the expenditure of district one-time-money from parents, teachers, members of the community and members of the district's bargaining unit leaders. The State recently allocated $195,591.

Information on the results of the categorical coordinated compliance review was given by Nancy Brynelson, director of categorical programs. Staff felt it was a very good review. Individuals who helped make the review a success were also recognized.

Approved plans as submitted by the school sites for the expenditure of one-time money allocated by the state to each school within the state. School sites were asked to budget on a $6-per ADA figure or $25,000 per site, whichever is greater.

An update was given on the core reading program instruction materials money. The WUSD received notification this week that it is eligible to receive approximately $80 per K-3 pupil for core reading materials.

The board was informed that the Yolo County Office of Education will no longer be providing transportation for some of the special education students in the county because of increasing costs and lack of additional funding from the State. Pending approval on the January consent agenda, the Woodland Unified School District's board of trustees will expand transportation services and offer to contract with the local school districts for transportation needs of special education students.

Approved an energy reduction and conservation project proposal.

The provision assures that the public is aware of the costs associated with a tentative collective bargaining agreement before it becomes binding on the district.

Public disclosure of costs for agreement with WUSD management and confidential employees.

Approved the tentative agreement with Washington Teachers Association for the 1996-97 school year.

Approved agreement with WUSD confidential and management employees.

Approved the recommendations of the administrative panels concerning students #0096, #0117, #6286. Student #0159 -- board recommended that student be expelled from schools of district. Student will enroll at Westside School. Student #1116 -- (mother was present) board recommended that student be placed in Independent Study on probationary basis until February and then go to Yellow Track at Golden State Middle School.

Approved both certificated and classified personnel recommendations, as presented, with additions.

The next regular meeting of the board will be held on Tuesday, January 28, at 7 p.m. in the city council chambers, 2101 Stone Blvd., West Sacramento.

$550,000 in one-time funds for local schools

By Steve Marschke

School sites in the Washington Unified School District are enjoying the privilege of spending over a half million dollars in "money from heaven" on one-time expenditures such as books, furnitures and other items, said Dr. David Miller, superintendent of schools.

The funds come from two different state "pots," he added, with almost $200,000 being allocated among the district's campuses and a further $350,000 to be spent at the district's discretion.

"What we did at the last (school board) meeting is talk about some of the priorities," said Miller. Among the school-by-school choices for spending the $200,000 split among the campuses appear to be new uniforms for high school and middle school band members, a new stage for Alyce Norman Elementary School, textbooks and other supplies. The money cannot be spent on recurring costs such as salaries.

The $200,000 is to be split according to a formula involving student body size, with a minimum of $25,000 per school site.

Four of the district's nine schools have had plans approved to spend their allocation of the $350,000 fund as well, Miller added.

"They're spending on books, supplies, a marquee for Bryte Elementary School, copiers, and furniture for a new library at Evergreen," he said. "Golden State Middle School took their entire allotment of $65-70,000 and they're going to put it into a new computer lab in their media center. Bryte Elementary will get fans for its cafeteria area."

Internet offers flirting opportunities for the impaired

Oh, Internet, thy name is Deceit.

Well, actually, it's really the chat rooms that I'm talking about. We have an online service which allows us to connect up with the internet. As part of this online service, there are things called chat rooms. Basically, they're places where 20 or more people can all converse through typing...at the same time. It's kind of a "free for all." One does this by looking at the computer screen and seeing what the other people in your "room" type in. When you have the urge to participate and add something edifying, simply type in a line revealing your thoughts.

Or reveal the thoughts of your alter(ed) ego.

As it turns out, chat rooms seem to be a modern day hip-hop 20's-something singles' "pick-up bar." There is one twist, though. No one really knows who anyone is. You can take on the persona of anyone. You could be under age, like 14. You could be "over age," like 63.

Being the amateur social scientist that I am, I decided to have a little fun...er..I mean perform some intricate critical research into the foibles of the human character when anonymity is allowed. Basically, if you could be anyone you wanted to be, you could actually become that person in cyber-space.

So I, Tobias James Smoot (not my real name), took on a chat room pen name, Jessica. Jessica was a 28 year-old mail carrier from Ventura. It did not appear that my marital status mattered at all. Well, I, or Jessica, began our little experiment, and she met some interesting folk. I donned my disguise and walked into the dusky, dank singles bar. The light was subdued, but my eyes soon adjusted. Off to the left was a long bar wrapping around the corner. To the right were small, round tables, barely large enough for four people to sit around. I walked up to the bar and ordered a coke. The cyber-bar was sparsely populated.

I noticed "Ralph from the Bay Area" first. It was hard not to. Ralph was seated by himself at a table off to the side, drinking beer directly from a pitcher. He was dressed in a black leather vest with a tank top revealing his fat, hairy chest. Ralph took great pleasure in trying to pick up women "his way." "His way" was yelling lots and lots of sensitive, endearing, four letter words. Apparently, in some parts of the Bay Area, his pick-up strategy really works to attract women. To him, women were something to be conquered, and by golly (not his words), he would draw them to himself by enrapturing "them babes" with his verbose vulgarity. All could see that Ralph was a "true man" as he spouted off about his supposed virility.

No one liked Ralph.

As it turned out, I happened to sit next to two "regulars," Pete and Joe, who joked good-naturedly about being married many, many years. It turns out that one was from the Ventura area, so I participated and chatted about this and that. You know, girl stuff, like recovering the Space Shuttle's liquid fuel tanks off the coast of Southern California. Joe eventually left the cyber-bar, and a little later sent me a request for a "private chat room." This is where just you and one other person can talk, real intimate like. It'd be like going into a back room of the bar. Right. Well, my momma didn't raise no fool. I just ignored him (cyber-space version of a slap in the face). Fresh!

At the end of the cyber-bar, a "19" year old kid asked me (Jessica) in very plain English some very intimate things. This kid was like a sloppily drunk college student who had lost all his dignity. I told him I was a cop. Apparently, this didn't bother him, and he reiterated his question. I ignored the kid, and eventually he passed out at my feet, mumbling his same request like a mantra.

Then I noticed that off in the smoky corner there was one guy just sitting around observing everyone chit-chatting. We'll call him Augustus. He nursed his one drink until he spotted his prey. Then he went on the prowl.. Apparently, I (Jessica) was his next victim. He watched me from afar for some time, and when the mood hit him, he stood up and confidently walked over to me. "Hi!," he whispered in my ear through a private chat room request. Any self respecting girl would ignore him completely, but being kinda new at this gender, I only answered him out loud (in the public chat room), where it was safe, where everyone else could see our conversation. He eventually went away.

Lastly, there was Mr. Slick, the fast talking crook. His black, dippity-doo-ed hair and plaid polyester suit matched his motives. He was interested in taking advantage of a lonely heart 28 yr. old woman. But his motive was money. Through a private chat room request, he posed as a representative from the "Modem Department" and asked for my internet password. If I had done this, it would have been like giving him my Visa card number.

After a bit, my cyber-coke was empty, and I decided to end my foray into this cyber-bar (sign off). So I said my pleasantries, got up, and walked to the entrance. Right before I closed the cyber-door, I took one last glance back. Ralph, Pete, Joe, the college kid, Augustus, and Mr. Slick. An entertaining time to be sure. But I noted that cyber-bars are fraught with dangers of many types. Certainly not a place where a good girl should spend her time.

Local market meets anti-smoking goals

From the Yolo County Public Health Department

The Yolo County Organization for Tobacco-Free Youth has been monitoring convenience stores, small markets and gas stations in West Sacramento in order to reduce tobacco advertisements and products. The organization is enlisting the help of local merchants to reduce the number of youths who have access to tobacco products and to reverse the rising trend of teenage smokers.

The stores are monitored every month to see if they meet the organization's requirements. Stores that meet these requirements receive a logo to display in their stores. These stores will receive free advertisement in the local papers through this monthly article. The merchants also receive feedback from the organization as well as educational information about health issues, tobacco advertisements and the Tobacco Industry.

The Yolo County Organization for Tobacco-Free Youth is asking West Sacramento residents to help by shopping at stores displaying our logo. The organization would like to congratulate Siotae Market in the County West shopping center off West Capitol Avenue for meeting all the requirements of the organization for the month of December. Please help us to recognize Siotae Market by shopping at the store.

The Sports Insider

By Richard Novoa

It's Super Bowl XXXI in New Orleans, and the Green Bay Packers, who are 14-point favorites, prepare to tangle with the New England Patriots on the FOX network on Sunday, Jan. 26, with game time around 3:18 p.m. The FOX network plans a five and a half hour pre-game show!

I'll save you some time and give you my analysis of the game and my prediction of the winner.

The NFC has won thirteen straight Super Bowls. Only three of the games, including last year's Cowboys 27-17 victory over the Steelers, have been decided by ten points or fewer. The cumulative score is 455-198, which averages out to 38-17. Drew Bledsoe was 11 years old the last time the AFC won the Big Game. That was the '83 season, when the Raiders beat the Redskins 38-9.

The big question is, can the Patriots stop the league's MVP in quarterback Brett Farve, and the rest of the Packers' offense, who led the NFL in scoring? The answer is very simple. No, but if you want to stop the Packers from scoring points, you need to knock the quarterback out of the game or keep him off the field.

The chances of New England hurting Favre are not too good, because he is strong and throws best on the run, so they must keep him off the field by scoring points and holding onto the ball! The key to a New England victory is long, time-consuming drives and no turnovers! New England's QB Drew Bledsoe is 34-28 in his career as a starter, 6-0 when he throws 29 or fewer passes, and 12-6 when he throws 30-39 times, but only 14-20 when he has to throw 40 or more passes in a game. He has averaged 39 passes per game!

The Packers defense is ranked No. 1 in the league, giving up only 210 points, best in the league and 103 fewer than the Patriots. The Patriots' defense has allowed only 73 points in their last seven games, including only three field goals in two playoff games.

Is this the Packers' year, especially after losing in the divisional round in 1993 and 1994, and in the NFC title game last year to Dallas? Both teams had three common opponents during the regular season. The Packers lost 21-6 to the Cowboys (7 field goals) and the Patriots lost 12-6. The Cowboys didn't score a touchdown against either of them. Green Bay hammered the Broncos (41-7) without Elway in a meaningless game) and the Patriots lost at home to Denver 34-8. Both teams beat up on the San Diego Chargers: Green Bay 42-10 and New England won 45-7.

Did you know they played each other in their pre-season opener in Green Bay, with the Packers winning 24-7?

That's right, it means the Patriots and Packers will open and close the 1996 season by playing each other.

The Packers are picked by everybody in the world, but I think that New England's coach Bill Parcells, who has won two Super Bowls, will put together a game plan to stop Farve. The Packers will probably win the game, but I look for a close game that the Patriots might even win!

So take all the points you can get!

Patriots in the first big upset of 1997!! The AFC finally wins the BIG GAME!

SUPER BOWL XXXI: New England 21, Green Bay 19.

See ya next week!

Sacto ballpark: West Sac shouldn't pick up the tab

Mayor Joe Serna's plan to put a baseball park downtown, a plan that was certainly complicated by the demand by the Sacramento Kings basketball team owner for Sacramento to help fund a sports complex in Natomas, would bring some benefits to West Sacramento.

If a baseball stadium is built in downtown Sacramento, most people travelling to games from the west will, of course, travel through West Sacramento city limits. When they need a post-game meal or a tank of gas to get home, then, West Sacramento stands to make a little money.

How much this city will gain is wide open to question, but the intuitive answer is "not much." Most of the benefits will stay right next to any new stadium.

That's why the West Sacramento City Council's present policy on this issue is a good one. The council has chosen to stay involved in the proposal and watch it develop, in order to look out for this city's interests. And the council appears to have guessed, accurately, that West Sacramentans are not very willing to see their city dig into its pocketbooks to help make Serna's dream come true.

It appears unlikely that this city council will become cheerleaders for this stadium proposal, and that's the way it ought to be. The stadium can succeed or fail without major support from West Sacramento, and this city should only offer its support in ways that don't cost too much.

Visit the Wall

Many people cannot visit to see the Vietnam Memorial Wall in Washington, D.C.

State Assemblyman Richard R. Floyd (55th District) has arranged for a visit to a replica of the Vietnam Veteran Memorial between February 9 and 11. There will be a public program on February 9 from 1 to 3 p.m., adjacent to the California Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Capitol Park.

The Vietnam Veterans Memorial transcends the war in Vietnam to help our nation renew its relationship with veterans of all wars. Veterans and non-veterans will find in the 250-feet-long wall a deeper appreciation of wartime veterans' sacrifice, service and courage. I urge all veterans to attend the program on February 9.

Sports complex

Rather than give in to Jim Thomas' demand of some $145 million..."or take the (basketball) Kings elsewhere," let him do just that! After all, the Los Angeles Dodgers are up for sale with a starting price of $49.5 million. With the difference, Sacramento could form a private corporation to build a combination baseball/football/special political arena for its "Sacramento Dodgers." This would also give our State lawmakers an incentive to achieve meaningful progress and to not "dodge the issues" or gridlock too much.

Couple that with the expected development of North Natomas and the 70,000 expected residents, it makes a lot of sense to have an I-5 bypass coming through West Sacramento to ease the traffic crunch on I-5 now coming through downtown and Old Sacramento. But such a bypass should also have adequate access to/from I-5 and West Sac's Southport region and across the river to connect somewhere north of Florin Road, not all the way south to Freeport, where this writer understands we already have a two-lane bridge across the river. (And that new bridge should provide for light rail, too.)

Finally, maybe it is time also for the two sides to agree on a formula to split the savings on a larger sewer line from Natomas-West Sac-Elk Grove (as opposed to the cost of enlarging miles of Sacramento lines). Operation of such lines should result in significant savings for West Sac; otherwise, let's just build two new plants -- one for North Natomas and one for West Sac's Southport area. And yes, we still need Regional Transit/YoloBus service to/from Sacramento International Airport. Food for thought.

Residents maligned

A recent photograph in the News-Ledger showing the demolition of the Vacation Inn referred to the Inn as "a den of iniquity." Having represented many of the individuals who lived at the Vacation Inn, I take exception to this and other negative characterizations that the News-Ledger has printed in recent weeks. The vast majority of individuals who stayed at the Vacation Inn were hard-working, law-abiding citizens. Many were families and children who had temporarily fallen on hard times, or who were simply unable to find affordable housing elsewhere. Others were senior citizens living on fixed incomes. By painting all of the Vacation Inn residents with one broad brush, you unfairly malign these individuals and mislead your readers.

Fortunately, many of these former residents of the Vacation Inn will now be given the opportunity to live in housing that is both decent and affordable. Under a settlement of the lawsuit that was brought by Legal Services and by the Western Center on Law and Poverty when the Redevelopment Agency acquired the Vacation Inn, the agency will provide rental assistance for up to 95 households and will build new affordable housing for up to 140 households. Many low-income seniors and families will finally be able to live without the constant worry of finding and keeping a decent place to live. And in the end, providing this stability to individuals in need will strengthen the community as a whole.

Editor's response: There was never an attempt by the News-Ledger to characterize all residents of the Vacation Inn as criminals. Obviously, the law-abiding citizens residing at the address were nothing less than victims of non-law-abiding neighbors.

West Sacramento police reported before the Vacation Inn was purchased that it was the source of two percent of the city's police calls -- one in fifty police calls were coming from this single residential complex, the Vacation Inn. This is why the News-Ledger reported on Jan. 8 that the Vacation Inn was "deemed a den of iniquity" by the city's leaders before being purchased in 1991. This still seems an accurate statement.

That said, to the extent that any law abiding residents of that former motel have honestly taken offense from any of the News-Ledger's characterizations of crime at the motel, the News-Ledger offers its apologies.

Flood response

Thanks to the police, Neighborhood Watch people were notified lately when the flooding in Yolo and Sacramento started. They let us know exactly what was going on. Bonnie Ridenoir took the initiative to put out a flier in her area so people would know what was going on in West Sacramento and not worry. There will be a meeting soon for Neighborhood Watch and others for "Disaster Preparation Planning" -- a good thing -- so people who are shut-ins or hearing impaired or not TV watchers may think of ways to be notified if there is a problem. Marti Quirantes showed guides she was able to get from the Red Cross and other corporations addressing disaster preparation at Maple Holly's meeting.

At the councilmeeting, city manager Joe Goeden mentioned that the city will probably start a low-band radio station for uses like the recent floods, since the local stations -- including KOVR -- would not put information about West Sacramento on their stations. All we wanted people to know was that our levees are fine. Work is being done on them to keep them strong, but people wanted to hear that they were okay. The stations kept rerunning the same staff and would not give us any time. Still, being prepared for the next three months of weather will be prudent. Maple Holly has been trying to join Westfield, Meadowdale, and themselves at Westfield school towards this topic. There will be official printed material done by possibly mid-summer, but we wanted to fill the gap.

Councilman Chris Cabaldon achieved more in two months on the traffic committee than could be done by three others in four years. The 2X2 meeting with the school listened to a presentation by Traffic Engineer Rich Haygood (sounding like the schools had never heard of his crosswalk and stop-sign planning for safe school routes before last month) which is interesting, since we have been put off for years by blaming the schools for the slow-up in planning. Maybe Chris' ears are more results oriented than our past councilmen in charge of Traffic. Nice to see. In two meetings there has been an establishment of communications which has not been forthcoming until now.

At the Traffic Committee meeting there was mention of a federal grant replacing signs in the city. So Southport -- which did not ask for any -- was automatically given signs, while Meadowdale Homeowners Association has been asking for a replacement sign since 1989 prohibiting trucks, but has been told that replacement is not coming. And you wonder why areas get disgusted with the "powers that be." Individuals in Southport called me about their signs, so it isn't the individuals who live there, its the council which perpetuates division and inequity in the city.

If you listened to Tom Sullivan you heard Sacramento Councilman Waters on the financing of the new sports center and stadium. Noting that

Mobile home survey to target areas to improve

From Art Schroeder
Community Relations
Redevelopment &
Housing Agency
City of West Sacramento

Mobile home residents citywide will be asked to provide important information to the City of West Sacramento in a new survey this month. For the first time in its ten years, the city is asking mobile home owners, managers and residents for their opinions on the needs and conditions of local mobile home parks. This information will help identify current issues and areas for possible improvement.

The city recognizes that mobile homes represent a large portion of its housing stock. Approximately 14 percent of the total households are living in manufactured homes. Responses to this survey will therefore be valuable in providing a complete picture of local mobile home issues.

The survey is made possible by a Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) authorized by the State of California's Department of Housing and Community Development.

Questionnaires are expected to be mailed to the 24 mobile home parks located in West Sacramento beginning the third week of January. To attract impartial responses, participating residents will not be asked for their identity.

After the study has been completed, the results will be available for public review. Residents with questions about their survey may contact the City of West Sacramento's Redevelopment Agency at 373-5843.

'Little Holland Tract'

From the Department of the Army
U.S. Army Engineer District, Sacramento
Corps of Engineers

The Corps of Engineers has prepared the final environmental assessment (EA) for the proposed acquisition of Little Holland Tract, California. Little Holland Tract is located at the southern end of the Yolo Bypass and is bounded by the Sacramento River Deep Water Ship Channel on the east and Liberty Island on the west. Little Holland Tract lies in Yolo and Solano Counties. The EA reports on the effects that acquisition of Little Holland Tract would have on resources within the study area. The draft EA was circulated for public review and comment. Comments received on the draft EA were incorporated as appropriate. The EA concluded that the proposed acquisition would not result in any significant impacts. As a result, the finding of no significant impact (FONSI) was signed.

If you would like a copy of the EA and FONSI, please write to us at the above address, or call Ms. Patricia Roberson at 557-6705.

LETTERS from p. 5

people hate spending their taxdollars where private business should be doing its job. Cal Expo won't allow you to make any money promoting sports because they take all the concessions -- the moneymaker -- and the same with other sport arenas, so telling the public that sports will be able to flourish when bike clubs, motorcycle clubs, car clubs and horse organizations cannot promote unless they kiss the ring of some politician is a good try at propaganda. They mentioned redevelopment money being spent on projects which helped the area, but failed to mention that those projects indirectly donated to Serna, etc., so received money rather than fixing those school boilers and roofs in Sacramento. Sorry, that it annoys the WSPRESS that my mind wants to protect the taxpayer rather than believe every breath of hot air coming across the media's pages. At least they print my letters, which is more than the Bee will do.

Parks and Rec commission mentioned that they were not invited to the Lighthouse Marina Dinner and Presentation like all the other commissions. I mentioned that the public wasn't either, but they said they did extensive interviews. This list is not extensive but selective. A statement in the 42-acre giveaway study, said there was an invalid concept of the community that the city owned too much land and the public was incorrect. I said I was part of that group that was "invalid" because the city does own too much land that does NOT serve the public as a whole. City, state, and federal government in the real estate business using our taxdollars is not what citizens want or what our economy needs. Socialized housing, government run business, benefits for the convicts rather than the victims, help for anyone coming to the US rather than the people who built this country, is hardly to be embraced by the public. Most of us have relatives to served in wars, died in wars, and just want to live our lives free of fear. Justice, accountability, US sovereignty, police enough for safe living, schools that actually teach and officials protecting us. Ideals understandable and uniting when neighbors get together to talk.

For kids

The staff at the Turner Branch Library, 1212 Merkley Avenue, wants to remind readers that Pre-School Story Time is in full swing. Pre-schoolers and their parents are invited to attend Wednesdays (10:30 a.m.) and Thursdays (7 p.m.)

Come and enjoy the festivities...and don't forget to look at the dragon display located at the front desk. Upcoming spring events for children include a visit from Clifford the Big Red Dog, a Spring Fling (and egg hunt), and as Anne of Green Gables Tea. One of the goals of the Turner Branch Library is to encourage children to read. Year-round programs, events, and school visits help the staff to incite an interest in reading among young people.

With the help of the Friends of the Library and the financial contributions by West Sacramento patrons and community organizations, the library is able to organize children's activities and to increase its book and periodicals collections. Recently, generous donations made by two local groups -- the Preceptor Xi Zeta Sorority and the Friends of Cindy Tuttle -- will expand the Family Resource Library. If you would like more information on how you or your group can assist the Turner Branch Library, please call 375-6465.
